BLANCO FONTAS-S II Filter, FONTAS II Filter and TRIMA FilterThe ultimate in refreshment with filter mixer taps

Water-lovers will be thrilled: Blanco is set to offer filtered drinking water straight from the tap with its three new mixer taps. This marks an end to the era of dragging pallets of water bottles around or bemoaning the limescale in your coffee machine, and the dawn of a new age, with pure, refreshing drinking water straight from your mixer tap. The Blanco Fontas-S II Filter is the first mixer tap worldwide with a pull-out spout, thus offering lots of extra manoeuvrability around the sink. This additional feature comes in handy on a day-to-day basis, not least when filling up your coffee machine or glass pitcher in the morning.

Drinking water is considered to be one of the best controlled foodstuffs, and is of very high quality throughout Germany. However, keen tea- and coffee-drinkers and those who drink tap water know that water hardness varies from place to place, and there are also trace elements that have an impact on the taste experience. The high-quality BWT multi-stage filter built into the base cabinet cleans the tap water of any fine particles, such as sand or metal, which could affect the taste. It also reduces the amount of calcium and chlorine for a perfect drinking experience. What's more, your cup of tea or coffee will no longer be marred by streaks of limescale.

Another advantage of having a filter mixer tap in the kitchen is that thanks to the purified mains water, there is less limescale in coffee machines, kettles and other kitchen appliances, which can extend their lifespan.

The smart new Fontas-S II Filter, Fontas II Filter and Trima Filter mixer tap are notable for their modern design. With its L-shaped spout, Fontas comes in two surface finishes: chrome and easy-care, resistant stainless finish UltraResist. The Blanco Trima Filter has an arched fixed spout and is only available in chrome. Designed as a 3-in-1 system, all of the mixer taps allow you to get filtered water from the tap, along with conventional warm and cold mains water, using a separate mixer lever.

What's more, filter mixer taps can also be retrofitted. Blanco offers its own installation service for smart mixer taps. This means a higher level of security and reliability for dealers. End customers also receive an induction into the functions, operation and maintenance of the mixer taps.
